2020 has been the year of the COVID-19 pandemic, but that fact hasn’t stopped restaurants from opening in and around Miami.

Even earlier in the year, when we had no idea how bad it would get and for how long, new restaurants popped up all across the county.

And that hasn’t changed as we close in on 2021. Even more new places are there for your dining pleasure, whether you’re in South Beach, Coral Gables or Aventura.

Here are some of the new restaurants that opened their doors to feed the people this year.

RED ROOSTER

In December, Marcus Samuelsson finally opened his long-awaited Red Rooster in Overtown, a replica of his famous Harlem spot.
